KAYLAND ZEPHYR. "Can't decide which boots are right for the trip? Stop wondering and start hiking with this all-purpose midweight. Let's be clear: Gear testing has its glory moments, but putting your feet through the new-boot grinder to find blisterproof footwear is not one of them. Unless the new boot in question is the Zephyr. It worked for nearly every trip and load - out of the box - with the support and stability for carrying 50-pound packs in rough terrain, and a low-bulk design for fast striding on dayhikes." Backpacker, April 2009, p. 41.
